GVFHRA Holiday Party “UNIQUELY” Entertaining

*The ice-breaker was done, the announcements complete,
The buffet lines were gone, we'd all taken our seats.
The room was divided into four teams with care,
and UNIQUE Entertainment took over from there!*

Four teams did battle in this unique and entertaining game show activity . . . to the delight and amusement of all involved!

For those who missed this truly exceptional event, UNIQUE Entertainment provided a game show format that involved everyone and created an atmosphere of excitement, exhilaration and true bonding for all of the participants! With the room divided into four teams, 4-5 participants at a time took turns being “in the spotlight”, answering questions and performing ‘challenge’ activities while being cheered on by the rest of their teammate spectators.

Most questions were in video or audio format and ranged from “who sang this tune”, to “name this movie”, but there were physical challenges including ‘Hula Hoop’, Lip Sync and group singing activities. Full audience/spectator participation was generated with points for the loudest cheering section or the most involvement, and a great time was had by all.

Our thanks to everyone who contributed items to our Toys for Tots Drive and supported the Silent Auction which we will report on in the February issue. Special thanks to Sherpa Higher Performance for our ice breaker activities and to UNIQUE Entertainment for this great holiday presentation. We hope you enjoy the photo recap of this event.

Villanova University – the Leader in SHRM Learning System Certification Courses!

Villanova University offers the 13-week Villanova/SHRM Learning System Certification Course for the Spring 2010 semester, beginning the week of February 1. If you've been planning to earn your PHR® or SPHR® designation, 2010 is the year to enroll in Villanova's updated and expanded HR Certification Institute exam preparation course based on the SHRM Learning System®. Both the HR Certification Institute Body of Knowledge and rules regarding HR certification will change dramatically in 2011, so it is highly recommended for HR professionals not currently certified to attend classes in 2010 before the new changes are implemented.

Classes begin the week of February 1 at Villanova University on Tuesdays, Thursdays and on alternate Saturdays, as well as Malvern at SunGard on Tuesday evenings.

Villanova University was recognized in May 2009 by SHRM as a top #10 University in the country offering the SHRM Learning System certification course. In addition, Villanova' student pass rate continues (for the sixth year in a row) to exceed the national pass rate for both self-study and college/university programs.

Villanova University moves the Global Professional Human Resources (GPHR®) certification to Villanova University on Monday nights starting on February. The GPHR was launched in Philadelphia in the fall and was a major success! This program is geared for those who work for international companies and deal with issues unique in international HR.

Class information for the Villanova University Spring 2010 SHRM Learning System certification courses is available at www.continuingstudies.villanova.edu.

President's Message

By Leon Singletary, President

Happy New Year!

There is much to look forward to in the coming year, as the signs are clear and evident that a recovery is underway for the US economy. Accordingly, it is important that our chapter continue its efforts to focus on our most valuable resource – our core membership. We have a strong and active chapter that continues to set high but obtainable standards for others to follow. I am very pleased and proud of the progress that our chapter has achieved against the goals set in May 2009.

Here are some of the GVFHRA's 2009 highlights:

- Membership Growth: We continue to increase our membership toward our 500+ member goal despite the down economy. In fact, our chapter had the highest membership growth of all SHRM chapters in PA as of November 2009.
- HR Education: We have strengthened the quality of our program offerings, including the quality of speakers, HRCI credit availability, and timely, interesting topics. As a result, we experienced an average of over 100 attendees during our fall dinner meetings.
- Career Advocacy and Community Outreach: We improved our community outreach efforts with a proactive and renewed focus on our workforce readiness, college relations, charity fund raising and career transition programs. We continue to receive positive news about the results of these efforts from our core membership, local community members and local media.
- Enhancing Leadership: We continue to enhance the quality of the chapter's volunteer leadership team through on-going recruitment of committee chairs, co-chairs and members, while maintaining the core values of being supportive, action-oriented, appreciative, open, friendly and inclusive.

- Visibility & Recognition: The chapter has made significant strides in developing partnerships with other organizations in support of our goals of advancing the HR profession and serving the professional. As a result, GVFHRA has received local media coverage on many of its programs and community support initiatives.

I cannot express in words the gratitude I have for our extremely talented and dedicated team of volunteer leaders, including our board, committee members, and other past/active leaders, who have made these mid-term results possible. Through our collective efforts, the chapter is again on its way to achieving the Superior Merit Chapter Award, which will be announced later this year.

I hope you share my view that we have many reasons to be proud of our accomplishments, and we have even more reasons to be optimistic about our future.

For 2010, the chapter has planned many exciting programs and events that I am sure you will find meaningful and worthwhile. I am looking forward to seeing and networking with you at these events.

We will continue to do good things and prosper as long as we stay affiliated, stay current and stay involved.

Sincerely,

Leon

Violence in the Workplace - Are Companies Prepared?

Employee Relations Committee

By: Barbara Molettiere, Committee Member

You only need to listen to today's news to understand the potential for workplace violence. No organization can underestimate this threat regardless of your geographic location, time in business or company size. As Human Resources professionals, we can and should prepare our organizations to be proactive about this concerning issue. The New Year is an ideal time to plan and communicate your company's position regarding workplace violence.

Consider these:

- Have a zero tolerance policy. Do not tolerate bad behavior whether it is verbal, written or physical. Be explicit about weapons at work.
- Train managers and employees. Discuss how to identify and communicate their concerns.
- Communicate information about your Employee Assistance Program to employees and managers. Utilize the EAP to identify the signals of at risk employees.
- Embed the company's position and messages within the culture. Model the behavior expected of all.
- Implement background screening for new hires. Identify at risk candidates before they are hired.
- Ensure a security policy is in place to address external threats.

We all want to work in a safe, non-threatening environment. This issue can not be ignored.
